1. Project overview

My goal is to informally capture the dynamic she strove for while shedding light on the struggles she experienced. I'd like to show her feminine, beautiful side in the way she would've liked to be represented. Still, her circumstantial struggles are worth raising awareness about.

2. Resources

The original website from which I derived information is https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Marilyn_Monroe. Additionally, I'd like to take photos from Getty Images https://www.gettyimages.com/photos/marilyn-monroe.

3. Audience

The intended audience of my website is adults who enjoy entertainment. I expect the audience to be primarily above the age of 35, as Marilyn Monroe tends to be appreciated more by folks who grew up hearing her name. Because this website will be included in my portfolio, I expect my prospective employers and graduate school admissions offices to view it.

4. Message

The message I plan to convey will include a stark contrast between her vibrant, public-facing self and the deep struggles she experienced as a woman. I'd like to inspire readers with her strength to continue her journey as a model and actress despite her hardships.

5. Tone

I'd like to keep the tone of this website primarily light-hearted. There are saddening topics that will be mentioned, for which I'd like to implement a more informative, sympathetic tone. Generally, the website will highlight Marilyn's successes and pride her strength in overcoming obstacles.

6. Visual Style

I'd like to create a very retro vibe with plenty of feminine elements. I envision newspaper, lipstick, and bright red contrasting with black-and-white images.
